ICPS Australia wins key award

Building industry consultancy ICPS Australia has won a prestigious Institute of Building Consultants award.

ICPS Australia was presented with the Building Services Consultancy of the Year (more than five employees) Award at the institute's annual conference on the Gold Coast on Friday (4 March 2016).

The award recognises ICPS Australia for demonstrating an outstanding contribution to the building and construction industry in Queensland for more than a decade.

ICPS Australia's award submission included strong testimonials from its clients.

Matthew Lawrence, Head of Client Development, Australia & New Zealand, for Claim Central Pty Ltd said ICPS Australia provided services across the entire lifecycle of claims.

"ICPS Australia is involved at quoting and design stage. They provide emergency assistance services to secure unsafe dwellings. They ensure we provide works in accordance with current codes and laws," he said.

"ICPS Australia gives us a reference point for structural repairs. They provide expert advice in claims disputes and sometimes act as mediators to solve disputes. They also provide engineering/certification services during and after the repair process."

Adrian Morton, Group Business Development Manager for major builder Maincom Group, said ICPS Australia's staff were of the highest integrity and renowned for their experience, commitment to quality and customer service.

ICPS Australia Managing Director Brad Nicholls paid tribute to his team of engineers and other specialists, saying they were responsible for the win.

He said the company played a significant role in assisting communities after natural disasters, managing high-volume inspections, reporting and designing for claims requiring remedial works.
